The fire department was called out yesterday morning at 3 o'cleek to the corner of Fifteenth street and Third avenue. A fire had been started in some old ice houses which were formerly connected with the Stewart packing houses. They were unoccupied, and it was no doubt the work of an incenduary, who was anxious to see the rest of the establishment follow in the track of that which was burned down a couple of years ago. The fire had gotten considerable headway before the firemen arrived on the scene, but they ecceded in extinguishing it before any damage was done.

Henry Davenport of Atlantic was brought before Clerk P. M. Hunter of the federal court on the charge of selling liquor without a government license. He claims that he had made application for a license, but had not yet received it. A telegram was sent to the deputy revenue collector at Burlington to find out whether he told the truth. A repty was received stating that no license had been asked for by any one from Atlantic named Davenport. The prisoner was accordingly bound over to await the action of the federal grand jury in the sum of $300, in default of was sent to jail.

John Communes, William Stannard and R. H. Miller, were arrested yesterday for driving over the sidewalk on Seventh street be tween Mill and Washington avenue. The street at that point is in an almost impass able condition, and during the recent muddy season the teams that were compelled to pass that way made a road for themselves by driving along the sidewalk. The adjacent property owners did not like this, and they complained at the marshal's office, with the result that the three arrests were made. It is said that informations are out against several other offenders, who will be arrested on a like charge. The case of the Council Bluffs & Omaha transfer company vs M. Zoltsmann was on trial in Justice Patton's court yesterday af-ternoon. The plaintiffs claim that they had a contract with Zoltsman to furnish him forty tons of hay during the recent hay famine at $13.50 per ton, but when they delivered it he refused to take it. They accordingly bring action to recover damages in the sum stand by his word. Zoltsmann claims that he had the contract, but that the plaintiffs refused to fulfill their half of it. He sues for $05 damages. The case was tried on these rather contradictory statemements and was taken under advisement by the court.

SPRING GOODS AT BOSTON STORE

Fotheringham, Whitelaw & Co's. Attractions for the Week.

Notwithstanding the gloomy weather of last week thousands of people of Council Bluffs and vicinity visited the Boston store to admire and purchase the beautiful spring goods that were opened each day. The spring styles of ladies' dress goods were never so handsome as they are this year. The departures from last year's styles are very radical and embrace all grades of goods. During this week ladies will be well repaid for a visit to the Boston store whether they wish to purchase or not. They will enjoy looking at the many new and beau-tiful fabrics which they can find, and if east-ern prices will be any additional inducement they will be unable to resist the temptation to select something. Every line is full and you will be well entertained when looking them over.

We will furnish you wall paper this spring, in all the latest styles, at eastern prices, and will guarantee satisfaction both in quality and material. BOSTON STORE.

An answer was filed yesterday by the defendants in the case of Rachel Larimer against Jack Green and Thomas Skinner, which was commenced last month in superior court to obtain possession of a thirty-two acre tract of land situated between Big lake and the river. The plaintiff claimed that the land was held by the defendants without any right or title, and she demanded that they give it up to her, together with $150 damages which she has suffered by the detention. In the answer which was filed yesterday the defendants allege that the property, which is situated north of the river line according to the old government survey, is in the state of Nebraska, and that therefore the court has no jurisdiction in the case. They ask that the case be dismissed at plaintin's cost. The trial was to have come off yesterday, but as the filing of the answer brought some new matter into the case, it was postponed until

John Gilbert Finds His Load of Debt Too Heavy to Bear.

GRIST OF THE COURTS YESTERDAY.

Mrs. Puscy Dying-Mack Bound Over -Mrs. Carey's Funeral-Paralyzed His Hand-Other City Matters.

John Gilbert, who keeps a plumbing establishment at the corner of Main street and Willow avenue, made an assignment yesterday afternoon for the benefit of his creditors. W. A. Wood is the assignce. The terms of the assignment cover the entire stock and fixtures, consisting of steam, plumbing, brass and lead goods, steam fitting and well digging goods, pumps and sewer pipe, besides all book accounts and notes. According to his statement, the liabilities are $4,758, 15.

The failure resulted from a superfluity of bad depts. Mr. Gilbert states that he has been utterly unable to collect money that was owing him from patrons, on account of the general duliness. He thinks that if he had been able to collect this money he would have succeeded in meeting his obligations and have passed over the dull season safely. His creditors kept pressing him, however, and he had to take this way of satisfying them. was impossible to ascertain last evening what the assets will amount to. A fair stock is on hand, and it is thought that it, together with the amount of outstanding accounts, will be sufficient to pay nearly all the debts.

Doings in District Court. The case of Horace Everett vs the city was resumed in district court yesterday morning and occupied the attention of the court until 3 o'clock in the afternoon, when on account of the illness of Mrs. Pusey, wife of N. M. Pusey, the attorney for the plaintiff, there was a continuance until such time as Mr. Pusey shall be able to attend. None of the cases that followed in the assignment were ready for trial, so an adjournment was taken until this morning, after a few matters of minor importance had been attended to. A decree of foreclosure was granted in the case of Charles Bowman against Kate B. and F. J. Sackett on two lots situated in Sackett's addition. An objection to motion for a continuance in the three cases in which J. P. Casady is de-fendant was flied by the attorneys for the plaintiff, Wright & Baldwin. They allege that a continuance has been asked for by the attorneys for the defendant at every term of court since that of January, 1890, and has each time been supported by affidavits from physicians stating that the health of the defendant is such as to render the trial of the case unpossible. case impossible. They argue from this that the health of the defendant is constantly failing, and that a continuance of the case to an other term of court will be equivalent to turning the plaintiff out of court altogether. A motion for a continuance was filed in th case of W. F. Crancle vs Charlotte Maish, by the plaintiff, on the ground of a failure of certain depositions to arrive that it is claimed are essential to the trial of the case.

A decree was given in the case of M. I. Sears vs William C. Brownice, et al., in favor of the plaintiff, the defendant falling to appear. The title to lot 129 of the original plat of Council Bluffs was quieted in the Several other cases in which Overton is plaintiff were dismissed at plaintiff's cost, at the request of Jacob Sims, Overton's attorney. A like order was made in one of the injunction cases in which David Gray is plaintiff.

Mack Bound Over. H. D. Mack was brought before Justice Hammer yesterday forenoon for a preliminary examination on the charge of obtaining money under false pretences. Standing room was at a premium in the little office of the justice, half the residents of the western part of the city having sought admission for the purpose of seeing whether the prisoner was the man who had done them up. Mack looked around on the crowd and saw so many familiar faces he came to the conclusion that it would not be worth while to contest the point, and he waived his preliminary examination. The court bound him over to await the action of the grand jury, and fixed his bond at $500, in default of which he was remanded to the county jail. The ease will be brought before the grand jury at

A Great Fight. The first I heard of it was when Fred came rushing into the house after breakfast. "The enemy!" he cried. "The enemy is upon us!" "Where?" cried the others of us, jumping up. "In the battle-field, of course!" he said, and he seized his flag and rushed out again. We all followed as quickly as we could, says a writer in St. Nicholas. I put on the helmet and Max took the drum, and we let Toddles have the bugle this time because he'd just tumbled down, and he had the hearth-broom, too, so he was all right. We ran into the field and found that the enemy had taken up a strong position behind the old cannon. Ours position behind the old cannon. Ours real battle-field, you know, and has been there ever since the war). So we formed in line and Fred made a flank movement, meaning to take the enemy in the rear; but when he heard Fred coming he charged on our tine, and Toddles ran away, but Max and I retreated in good order and formed again behind a rock, and began to shell him with green apples. He stopped to eat the apples, and meanwhile Fred completed his flank movement, and falling upon the enemy's rear, whacked it violently with a stick, waving his flag all the time and shouting: "Yield, caitiff! Yield, craven hound!" (I tell him that in war, but he always says that Roland and Bayard did, and that what suited them will suit him). Well, the enemy turned suddenly on Fred, and drove him back against the cannon; but by that time we had advanced again, and Toddles was blowing the bugle as hard as he could, which seemed to disconcert the enemy. Fred took a flying leap from the cannon right over his back, and putting himself at our head rallied us for a grand charge. We rushed forward, driving the enemy before us. A panic seized him, and h fled in disorder; we pursued him as far as the fence, and he got through a hole and escaped but not before we each had a good whack at him. It was a glorious victory. Fred made us a speech after-ward from the cannon, and we atl waved our-well, whatever we had to wave, and vowed to slay the invader if he ever dared to show his nose on our side of the fence again. Ah, yes! it was a splendid fight. "Who was the enemy?" Why, didn't I say? Farmer Thurston's pig, of

No One Stopped Him. Says Judge Richards of Chicago: was once a justice in Bosque county, Texas, when a little man was brought in by a constable and two assistants for the ffense of carrying two revolvers. I told him he must pay $2 and lose the weapons. At that the little fellow broke down and actually cried. Finally, with the tears streaming down his cheeks, he said: 'O judge, jes' let me bid 'em good-bye. Ma giv 'em to me an' I can't go without handlin' them jes' once.' I consented, and the moment he got the weapons he straightened up and, leveling them, yelled: 'I'd like tew see the galoot as can get ma's pistols now. Now I'm a-goin on my journey.' Nobody tried to stop him.

Law's Vagaries.

Verily the times are out of joint, comments the Calcutta Guardian. A father has been charged at the Scaldah court with kidnapping his own daughter by his son-in-law. The joint-magistrate inquired very naturally how the charge of kidnapping could at all be preferred when the latter was the natural guardian of his daughter. The pleader for the prosecution reminded his worship of a recent ruling of the Calcutta high court by which any person is held criminally responsible for taking away a minor girl from her legitimate guardianship. We await the result of the trial with considerable anxiety.

think of visiting tourist resorts abroad until he has seen Niagara falls. He can have no appreciation of power, of grandeur, of awe-inspiring beauty, who has missed a visit to Life in California was at that time a wild romance. No words of mine can describe the scenes that were enacted during that chaotic period, says a writer in the Century. Thousands of men, or-ganized in bands or wholly disorganized, were constantly arriving from every part of the world and leaving for the diggins. Outlaws and professional gamblers opened saloons by the score at every point where men were congregated. Money was scattered every-where as if by the wind. Minors who had realized fortunes in a few days came down to Stockton, Sacramento and San San Francisco to squander them in a night at the gambling tables. All restraining influences of society were absent, and I cannot find an expression better suited to the case that "pandemonium on a frolic."

As there were no wives, there could be no homes or families. A few stores had been hastily put up along the shore, made of rough boards or canvas and all of them were doing an enormous business. The rest of the village consisted of shantles or tents used for restaurants and saloons. Human life was a moving panorama. The whole place was alive with a mass of unkempt men clad in flannel shirts and heavy boots, who were inspired with the one desire to hurry on to the mines.

This rough life was not without its touches of sentiment. One day the town was electrified by the rumor that an invoice of women's bonnets had arrived and could be seen at one of the stores The excitement was intense and there was a rush from every direction to get a realistic view of even so insignificant a substitute for female society. I do not overstate the truth in saying that the thoughts of home that were awakened in the breasts of the rude looking men at the sight of those bonnets started tears from eyes which the worst forms of privation and hardship failed to moisten.

The Christian missionary was already on the ground, and good Parson Wil liams had managed to find a place where he could preach on Sunday. of the first men who arrived with his family came to one of these meetings attended by his wife and baby. During the sermon it chanced that the ba cried and the mother was about to with draw, when the preacher addressed her thus: "My good woman I beg you to remain; the innocent sound of that in fant's voice is more eloquent than any words I can command. It speaks to the hearts of men whose wives and children are far away, looking and praying for a safe return to their own loved ones at home." Never shall I forget the sobs and tears which those words evoked throughout that rough assembly. That infant's cry seemed to them the music of 'angels. With those who made San Francisco their temporary abode gambling appeared to be the chief occupation and Spanish monte the favorite game. One nouse fronting on the plaza, a two-story frame building called the Parker house, rented for $120,000 per annum, the rental being paid mostly by gamblers. A single store of small dimensions and made of rough boards rented for $3,000 a month. A canvas tent used as gambling saloon rented for $40,000 per annum. Money was loaned on good security at 15 per cent a month, and out of the loan the borrowers made fortunes in real estate operations.

Art and Flunkeyism.

Mrs. Crawford, London Truth's Paris correspondent, says that the reason the Empress Frederick was treated with such scant courtesy by Paris artists was because they interpreted her direct appeal to them to imply that the flunker sentiment which reigns in courts and servants' halls was paramount in the studios. Had a delegation of artists, representing artists only, been sent from Berlin to Paris there would have been no loss of dignity in complying with their requests.
